WHEN BATSMAN IS OUT.

Rule 51. The batsman is out:
Section 1. If he fail to take his position at the bat in the order in which his name appears on the butting list, unless the error be discovered and the proper batsman replace him before he becomes a base runner, in which case the balls and strikes called must be counted in the time "at bat" of the proper batsman. But only the proper batsman shall be declared out and no runs shall be scorbd or bases run because of any act of the improper batsman. Provided, this rule shall not be enforced unless the out be declared before the ball be delivered to the succeeding batsman. Should the tatsman declared out under this section be the third hand out and his side be thereby put out, the proper batsman in the next inning shall be the player who would have come to bat had the players been put out by ordinary play in the preceding inning.

Hugh Bedient of the Boston Red Sox, the hurler who came to the rescue of the American League in the world's series of 1912, is likely to become a Backs—Alexander, Bateks—Alexander, Bateks series of 1912, is likely to become a Federal Leaguer before the 1914 campaign is ended. The only thing that Think Ouimet May Win is keeping him in line is the chance that the Red Sox will win the Ameri-can League pennant this year. As soon as it is settled that the Ath letics win and that Boston will have to be content with second or third place, Mr. Bedient is likely to jump to Buffalo Feds. In fact, Bedient would have jumped to Buffalo ere now had Manager Carrigan gone through with his intention to trade the had Manager Carrigan gone through with his intention to trade the iceberg pitcher for Vean Gregg.

The original Cleveland-Boston deal had it framed that Boston should give Bedlent, Egan and A. Rankin Johnson for the Naps' star lefthander. Bedient, however, balked and said he would jump if he were traded. As a result, the Naps took Coumbe instead.

President Gilmore denies that his Federal Leaguers are going after various minor league organizations, seeking to have them sever their connections with organized baseball. He says that Fielder Jones will be manager of the St. Louis club, not emissary of the outlaws among the minors. Gilmore also announces that eleven big leaguers have been signed up for next season in the Federal circuit, though he keeps their identities secret. "Among these players," concludes Gilmore, "are some identities secret. "Among these players," concludes Gilmore, "are some of the runs that went to make up the largest total that has been placed to the credit of the Nationals in a long while.

Dan Mceller, whose batting has been for two months, came through again, making three hits.

If there was the slightest doubt in the mind of anyone as to how Mike in the mind of anyone as to how Mike of the mind of anyone as to how Mike of the best men in the two older leagues."

From what we already know about some players, Gilmore is probably correct in saying that he has signed eleven players from the two big leagues. When players run around after the Federal leaguers, seeking to be tempted, it is very probable that some have been taken. One of the Griffmen went over to Baltimore for the express purpose of being approached by the outlaws. He then used his outlaw offer to boost his Washplayers. They are all taking advantage of the presence of the Federal League in the business. They are using the invaders as a hammer over the heads of organized baseball.

The principal difficulty in the Army-Navy situation is the inability of the service schools to sign agreements for any length of time. The socalled ten years' agreement has never yet been signed by the navy, it is said. If the two school athletic associations could have agreed to play games here for ten years, the Griffmen's park might have been obtained. The Washington club, if assured of a long term, would have fitted out the park to hold 40,000 spectators. But the service schools are still at logger-

HAGGLING CONTINUES

Haggling still continues as to the whereabouts of the annual football clash between the Army and Navy Giants retary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Garrison may be the court of last resort in choosing a suitable gridiron.

John B. Foster, speaking for the New York National League baseball

New York National League baseball club, has come forward, offering the use of the Polo Grounds, scene of last year's game. The University of Pennsylvania is already out with an offer of Franklin Field. Counic Mack offers the use of Shipe Park, home of the world's champion Athletics.

Though saying little, Army authorities show a disposition to play anywhere, if 12,500 seats can be guaranteed their use. West Pointers prefer to have the game staged at the Polo Grounds, but if the Naval contingent selects Philadelphia, there will be no complaints, providing those 12,500 seats can be obtained.

The Navy people refuse absolutely to go to New York again, claiming the distance from Annapolls is too great, working a hardship upon the spectators having to travel so far back and forth in one day.

In the hopes of obtaining the annual game for their city, a committee of 150 Philadelphians is expected to come to the Capital to wait upon the service officials. E. J. Berlet is chairman of the committee and he says Shibe Park can be made to hold 42,000 spectators.
